30% of all companies don't do any backups at all. Of the 70% that do only 30% do them regularly and properly (procedural). Of the 30% that do, very few store their data (copies of) securely off site in an environment specifically designed to secure, protect and preserve media and the important information it contains. A bank safety deposit box doesn't meet many of these standards in addition to being inconvenient.

The loss of vital records can result in severe legal penalties. 93% of all records are created digitally, and only 30% are printed to paper at all.

The loss of one piece of data can cost a company thousands of dollars to recover and can jeopardize their data credibility legally through questioning the validity of the rest of their data. It can also jeopardize the public credibility of the business itself. To date, most won't know this until they are required to defend themselves or recover from some form of disaster. Is it really worth the risk?

Fortress RBS is a completely automated solution that replaces or works with your current backup regime to ensure that you are prepared for any circumstance.

- Completely automated. Set it and forget it.
- High security encryption. No one can access your data but you. Not even Fortress.
- Dual redundancy (minimum), file versioning.
- Replace current backup process. Reduces costs.
